C. Reading Comprehension

When we communicate with others, we express our thoughts and feelings not only through the words we choose, but also through our tone of voice, facial expression and body language. In fact, many communication experts believe that far more information is communicated non-verbally (without words) than verbally (with words). "Body language" is an important part of non-verbal communication.

Body language includes many different aspects of our everyday physical behavior; the way we greet one another; how we stand, how we sit or walk; the way we position our arms and legs or use our hands and eyes are some of the most basic.

To learn another language is more than just learning words and grammar, it involves learning about another culture, too. We learn much of our own culture's body language before we learn to speak, from the time we are children, usually without even being aware of (knowing) it. And that body language varies from culture to culture, so it's something to which second language learners should pay attention. Sometimes, cultural differences in body language can cause discomfort or misunderstandings too."

Even speakers of the same language, such as British, American, or Australian people, may not use the same body language. British people are said to be more reserved and formal, in general, and this is reflected in their body language. Americans are considered more open and outgoing, while Australians are seen as casual and relaxed.

٤١. Which one of the following is not an example of body language?
a. The way we stand b. The words we use
c. The way we use our hands d. Facial expression

٤٢. In general, Australians are seen as:

a. Reserved and formal
b. Casual and relaxed
c. Open and outgoing
d. None of the above

٤٣. We should pay attention to body language because.....

a. It varies from culture to culture.
b. It may cause misunderstandings.
c. a and b are correct.
d. We don't have the answer in this passage.

Malaria is a serious health problem. It is a main cause of death in many countries. It occurs mostly in hot parts of the world, including parts of Africa, Asia, South America, Central America, and the Middle East. The place most greatly affected by malaria is Africa south of the Sahara Desert. About ٦٠٪ of the world's malaria cases and ٨٠٪ of the world's malaria deaths occur there. Even though the causes of malaria in this region are well understood, international health agencies are finding that controlling it is still an enormous and difficult task.

Because malaria is communicated to man by means of mosquitoes, and also from people to mosquitoes, we can think of the disease as a cycle. The malaria cycle begins with tiny parasites that resides in the bodies of Anopheles mosquitoes. These deadly parasites cause malaria. When a female mosquito bites a human, it draws off blood. It also leaves malaria parasites in the human's skin. These parasites quickly multiply inside the human and cause the individual to feel sick. If a mosquito bites a human who is sick with malaria, parasites from the human enter the body of the mosquito. When that mosquito bites another human, it will leave parasites in the other human's skin.

Becoming affected with malaria is a medical emergency. The first symptoms of malaria are fever, chills, sweating, intense headache, muscle pains. Nausea and vomiting often accompany these symptoms. Immediate medical treatment must be the main concern for people affected. They must take medicines that kill the parasites. If medical treatment is started soon enough, sick individuals can be cured. If they do not, malaria can cause serious illness or even death.

a. live
b. increase
c. decrease
d. fight

٤٥. All of the following are among the early signs of malaria EXCEPT.....

a. sweating
b. fever
c. insomnia
d. headache

٤٦. The passage provides enough information to answer which of the following questions?

a. Why is malaria so common in Africa south of the Sahara Desert?
b. How many people is hot parts have malaria?
c. What is the role of female Anopheles in the spread of malaria parasites?
d. Why are international health agencies still not able to control and prevent malaria?
